One of the obstacles that real estate investors encounter when working common investment strategies is competition. It can be frustrating, time consuming, and very costly. What we need is an uncommon investment strategy.

Reggie Brooks is here this (morning, afternoon, evening), and he's going to share some strategies with you that you can use to find extremely motivated owners of abandoned properties, and avoid the competition.

Reggie is an international speaker/lecturer, author, and real estate investor. While working at a local phone company Reggie began his investment career and, within 6 months Reggie had become financially independent. He went from making $36,000 a year at the phone company, to making over $40,000 a month in his real estate business.

Not often do we have the opportunity to learn about a system that has all of the vital elements that are necessary to make money in real estate. This is one such system. So, ladies and gentlemen, get your pens together and get ready to take lots of notes... and please help me welcome Mr. Reggie Brooks.
